"Central Asia's dramatic landscapes and unique urban centers are proving to be particularly alluring. Leading Kazakhstan's largest city, Almaty, which as we recently mentioned, will be the host of the region's first Winter Olympics in 2025, is a city of contrasts. Known as the 'Capitol of Coal,' it's one of those rare cities that can boast of being a major coal-mining hub, a vibrant business center, a major cultural and educational center, and a world-class ski resort at the base of the Tien Shan mountains."
